

Coming to the Piedmont October 9 & 10: WHO FRAMED ROGER RABBIT

Contributed by Mr. Heck

Directed by Robert Zemeckis, the release of Who Framed Roger Rabbit was greatly anticipated due to its use of traditional animation with live action. This marriage of the two led to seamless interactions between "Toons" and humans throughout this film that was well received by audiences and critics alike. Set amongst the lively 1940's Hollywood studio system, this comedic who-done-it cleverly lures us through every twist and turn of its plot by introducing the zaniness of Toontown, a world made up of over-the-top characters, outrageous scenarios and bouts of patty cake. Buckle up for the silliness and hang onto your seat for this delightful must see.
